

Day 62 Page 1
February 9, 2023
Valparaisa, Chile

We docked in the dock yard again next to some of the Chilean Navy Ships. I had schedule a excursion today but bad weather again so I stayed on the ship.
Pictures taken from the dinning room aboard ship.

The Theatre Show: Tierra Del sol: Gente De Chile
The identity and heritage are dynamic with the costumes, expressions and manifestations of how people themselves develop their culture.

Santiago, (Valparaiso) Chile

No excursion today.

Tonights Theatre Show:
Unique3

3 women with 3 different voices and one thing brings them together... the heart and soul of music. A musical journey of Rock, Soul and Broadway in one complete experience. They are, Unique3.

Late this afternoon the sun came out and most of the polluted air cleared and I could see more of the city as we sailed away. We got bad news over the intercom from the Captain as we left port, we would no longer be allowed off the ship when we get to Lima (Callao) Peru because of the unrest they are experiencing right now. We will only refuel, take on provisions and leave. I was disappointed, this was one of my 5 top stops of this cruise. Better safe than sorry. I guess I will need to make another trip to see Lima and the Gold Museum and at the same time make a trip to Machu Picchu.
