At Sea

A good day at sea, a very pretty deep blue ( Nice Weather ).
We are sailing in the Pacific Ocean with a South Western route to Hanga Roa ( Easter Island ).

Explorer Ferdinand Magellan named the Pacific Ocean in the 16th Century. In 1519 Ferdinand Magellan began a journey across the Atlantic Ocean to seek a western route to the Spice Island via South America. After braving perilous seas and navigating through the strait of Magellan, his small fleet entered an unfamiliar Ocean in November 1520. He called this body of water "pacific" due to the calmness of the water at the time.
